Pursue the extraordinary
Overview

To support the University of Sheffield’s Employability Strategy, the University is offering Sheffield graduates (who have graduated from an Undergraduate course within the last academic year) the opportunity to add to their academic success through gaining valuable work experience.

About the Department

The Psychology Department at the University of Sheffield is among the largest in the UK and has been consistently ranked as one of the outstanding research departments in all seven UK Research Assessment Exercises to date. Over 80% of our department’s research was classed as internationally excellent or world-leading in the Research Excellence Framework 2014. Our excellence in research spans the discipline and we have highly active groups under the broad headings of social, health and environmental psychology, human development and cognition, neuroscience and computational modelling, and clinical psychology. Ours is a large Department with a vibrant community of postgraduate and postdoctoral researchers.

The department is now at a pivotal point - in the last few years we have increased our staff and student numbers. Our undergraduate course is being redesigned and our building enjoying a multi-million pound refurbishment. More than ever our priority must be to sustain and promote our reputation and recruitment during these changes.

Further information about the Department and about staff research interests is available on our website at http://www.shef.ac.uk/psychology/.

Job Role

You will arrange, promote, run and video a series of speaking events by internationally recognised speakers and University of Sheffield psychologists. These TED-style talks for Psychology at Sheffield will be our chance to reach hundreds of college age students who are both in our target recruitment demographic and from backgrounds which are under-represented in University admissions. Each event will feature an internationally known guest psychologist, as well as a University of Sheffield academic. By recording the events we will create a permanent record which shows off the energy and talent of the Department’s staff as well as placing it as a leader in public engagement with psychology.

The post will require working with the Department’s Director of Public Engagement, Tom Stafford, as well as the University's Public Engagement with Research unit to plan, organise and arrange the events series. It will require liaising with existing outreach and schools programmes at the University, as well as staff working on Widening Participation. As well as the logistics of event planning you will also have responsibility for the advertising and promotion of the events across traditional and social media.
Main Duties and Responsibilities

- Identify and arrange venues for event series.
- Contact and coordinate with event speakers, both at the University and beyond.
- Coordinate with University Schools and Outreach programmes to reach college-age audience.
- Ensure excellent representation of students from "widening participation" backgrounds.
- Provide assistance with arranging transport to/from venues for audiences.
- Promote and publicise events and videos of the events.
- Work with academic colleagues to generate ideas for news content to raise the profile of the Department at local, regional and national level.
- Write copy for press releases, websites, social media and other communication channels to disseminate news content from across the Faculty.
- Undertake promotion and publicity activities for the Faculty in response to University-wide agendas such as public engagement (including Arts Enterprise), widening participation and Schools’ Outreach.
- Contribute ideas to the Faculty news content calendar for upcoming events and publicity campaigns, for example the student surveys, to encourage departments/ schools to use as part of their publicity plans.
- Help maintain a positive presence on the Department’s existing social media channels and websites using these to effectively promote the range of activities within the Department.
- Investigate opportunities to further develop our outreach and public engagement activities in coordination with other activities in the Faculty of Science and University.
- Develop processes which enable the effectiveness of public engagement activity to be monitored, evaluated and shared with colleagues.
- Develop and maintain effective relationships/networks with wider University departments (including the University's marketing section).
- As a member of our Professional staff you will be expected to demonstrate a commitment to the professional behaviours set out in the Sheffield Professional Framework. Please follow this link for further information: Sheffield Professional Framework.
• Any other duties, commensurate with the grade of the post.
